

Dear TWF friends

Taking Action Matters

As we get ready for our Gala Dinner next Thursday under the theme of 'The Power of Togetherness', it is a good time to take a step back and note global developments in gender equality.

Here are three encouraging areas:

Historic female firsts: Hong Kong welcomes its first female head of the Customs and Excise Department. In the Middle East, Egypt's State Council has just sworn in its first-ever batch of female judges to the State Council, one of the country's main judicial bodies. At TWF, we know that equal numbers of women and men at senior levels of decision-making matters and it is why advancing women leaders remains a core pillar of our work. It influences the types of issues discussed and policies developed, the results of which cascade down into other areas of society.

Progress for women's reproductive rights in Mexico: Mexico's Supreme Court unanimously ruled in a case regarding a state law, that criminal penalties for terminating pregnancies are unconstitutional. In the rationale for the ruling, the judges noted that women and other individuals able to gestate should have the right to make decisions and that laws criminalising abortion primarily punish the poorest and most marginalised populations. Lawyers and activists believe the decision sets a precedent and will be applicable across the country. This ruling aligns with movements elsewhere in the region, with Argentina's legalisation of abortion earlier in the year and Columbia soon to be addressing this issue as well. At TWF, we believe in the safety, dignity and bodily autonomy of all women and look forward to monitoring further developments.
