May Chow's Chinese-style "burgers" at her first restaurant, Little Bao, were a big hit, and many have been hoping for a larger restaurant for May to really spread her creative culinary wings. The answer to those prayers is Happy Paradise, a modern Chinese bistro with spectacular takes on Cantonese classics, such as slow-cooked chicken with Shaoxing wine, and braised pomelo skin with black sesame. Don't miss the cocktails either—they're all inspired by Hong Kong flavors like soy sauce, jasmine tea and hung yen cha, an almond dessert soup.
